"... THE GUY WHO WAKES the bugler up." Staff Sergeant Cris G. Stergiou leads the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps tonight at the Cleveland Stadium.

Leads Drum and Bugle Corps at Game Tonight

"The man who wakes the bugler up" steps out front and center tonight at the Cleveland Stadium before the fans assembled in the Cleveland Stadium to witness the Quantico Marines-John Carroll football game.

He's Drum Major Chris G. Stergiou of the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. The marching group will add color to the pre-game and half-time ceremonies. The unit has also been the center of wide-spread attention throughout the city the last two days.

Group Augments Band
The present Marine Barracks Drum and Bugle Corps was organized in 1934 to augment the Marine Band in formations, to play for presidential inaugurations, Bond Drives, parades, and festivals of all kinds.

"Musics" are enlisted from civilian life or drawn from component parts of the Marine Corps. They must attain a high degree of musical proficiency before they qualify, but training in their instruments continues after they are assigned to the Drum and Bugle Corps.

Corps Changes Constantly
"There are days when I feel like the old woman who lived in the shoe," said Sgt. Stergiou. "Our drills are executed to an arrangement of music and each movement is made on a certain measure of the music. The 24 musicians, unlike Marine Bandmen, do not serve the unit throughout their entire enlistment. Every time

Families of servicemen on active duty in Korea, along with Greater Cleveland veterans of the Korean fighting and their families will be guests of the Cleveland News and John Carroll University at tonight's game.

The veterans and their families will occupy a special section of the Cleveland Stadium and will be honored during the half-time ceremonies.

Ben Wickman of the Cleveland News handled the ticket distribution.

I think the group is about perfect, a new man joins the outfit and I have to rush his training so he will work precisely with the other men in the drill formations."

Ohio Buglers Play Tonight

When the colorful Marine Drum and Bugle Corps takes to the field tonight at the Cleveland Stadium, Ohio will be represented by two talented baritone buglers, Sgt. David Eldon Pingel of Toledo and Corp. Don Wendell Duvall of Dayton.

Sgt. Pingel, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pingel, 1502 Jersey Road, Toledo, attended Clay High School in Oregon Township and worked with the Doehler Jarvis Die Casting Company prior to enlisting in the Marine Corps in 1948.

Career Begin in School
His musical education started during his grammar school days under the direction of Mr. Ralph Runyon, with lessons on the trumpet, E flat and B flat sousaphone and drums. In civilian life, Sgt. Pingel played with the UAW-CIO Band, Local 12, in Toledo.

Duvall Hails from Dayton
Corp. Duvall, son of Mrs. Ada Duvall, 48 S. Hopeland Street, Dayton, attended Middletown High School and worked as timekeeper for the Broughton Construction Company in Middletown, Ohio, prior to enlisting in the Marine Corps. He also had two years in the Naval Reserve before undergoing boot training at Parris Island.

MARINES HONORED

THE MARINES HAVE LANDED. Disembarking from the Greyhound Silversides coach are members of Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. They march tonight at the Quantico game.

Greyhound Carries Corps. Sparks Rural Ticket Sales

Greyhound Lines, the nation's largest inter-city passenger carrier on the highways, has played an important dual role in honoring the United States Marine Corps this week.

The two phases consisted of providing transportation for the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and facilities for the sale of reserved seat tickets for Quantico-Carroll football game in outlying communities.

Gives Lift to Marines
In the first phase, Greyhound provided a special Silversides coach and furnished free transportation between Washington and Cleveland for the 24 members of the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and their officers.

The special bus departed from Marine Barracks in Washington at 7 a.m., Tuesday, Oct. 23. That evening it delivered the Marines to Bellefaire Children's home, the Red Feather Agency that is playing host to them during their stay in Cleveland.

Unit Dines at Carroll
Later that evening the coach transported the Corps members to John Carroll University, where

Dedication Sunday

Dedication ceremonies of the recently completed outdoor shrine, dedicated to Our Mother of Grace in memory of Robert J. Beaudry, will take place on Sunday, Oct. 28, at 2:30 p.m. It will be the highlight of Parents Day, to which the parents of all John Carroll students are invited.

Opening at 10 a.m. with Mass in the Auditorium, the day will proceed with brunch in the Cafeteria. A reception for the parents will be held in the Auditorium at 2 p.m.

CIVIC SALUTE CLIMAXED BY GAME TONIGHT

The John Carroll Blue Streaks meet the Quantico Marines tonight at the Cleveland Stadium. The gridiron battle is the climax of a three-day civic celebration by a steering committee of ten local civic, business, military, and educational organizations.

Getting underway Oct. 24, the civic salute featured appearances by the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps from Washington, and a luncheon today which spot-lighted top national civilian and military speakers and guests.

Thousands Join in Salute
Conceived as Northern Ohio's tribute to Marine achievement in Korea, the three-day observance is being propelled by the contributions of over 1000 Cleveland business organizations.

Extending a civic welcome to the Marines through luncheons, dinners, and other special activities are such groups as the Rotary Club, General Motors Corp., the Cleveland Community Chest, Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, and the Cleveland Advertising Club.

Slogan Hits Town
A household word now to Clevelanders is the sponsoring group's identifying theme "The Marines Are Coming," which appeared on billboards, in store windows, at traffic over-passes, in newspaper advertising, and through almost all forms of public new mediums.

Headline speakers at the civic luncheon this afternoon at Hotel Carter were Lt. Gen. Franklin A. Hart, commandant of Marine Corps schools at Quantico, Va., and Harry Stuhldreher, former football coach and athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, presently associated with United States Steel.

Humble Leads Marines
This evening festivities move to the Cleveland Stadium where a star-studded Quantico football squad, captained by former Cleveland Brown luminary, Weldon Humble, clashes with the John Carroll University Blue Streaks.

Participating in the pre-game and half-time ceremonies honoring the Marines will be the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, military units, bands, top-ranking officers of the various services and John Carroll's 1000-man ROTC unit and marching band.

Reception Ends Day
A private reception honoring visiting Marines and representatives of all the Armed Forces will wind up the celebration at 11:30 p.m. following the gridiron action at the Stadium. Hotel Hollenden will house the final event.

A complete schedule of the civic celebration will be found elsewhere in these pages.

Set Cansu Dance

The College and Nursing School Sodality Union will hold its sixth annual dance at the Hotel Allerton, Friday, Nov. 9. The dance will follow a Holy Hour in the chapel of St. John's College starting at 8:30 p.m. Bids are $2.50 per couple and music will be furnished by Hal Lynn and his orchestra.

they were guests of honor at a formal dinner.

The Greyhound coach has been at the disposal of the Drum and Bugle Corps throughout their visit in Cleveland. It transports them from their quarters at Bellefaire to the sites of their numerous engagements and personal appearances.

Following tonight's game at the Cleveland Stadium, the bus will return the musicians to their barracks in Washington.

Greyhound Sells Tickets
The second phase of Greyhound's role in the activities consisted of facilities made available, through the bus line's agencies in communities within 120 miles of Cleveland, to supply transportation and

Salutes Bus Line

The appearance of the Marines in Cleveland and the civic celebration in their honor are the subjects of an article in the October issue of The Ohio Motorist, monthly publication of the Greater Cleveland Automobile Association.

The part played by the Greyhound bus line in furnishing transportation for the Drum and Bugle Corps receives special mention in the article.

Foremost in securing free transportation for the Marine marching unit between Washington and Cleveland has been Chester H. Bullen, Sales Manager of Central Greyhound Lines.

Marine Spirit Conquers

The spirit of the United States Marine Corps is a wonderful thing whether it be applied to the fighting machine that has fought and died for our country since its earliest days, or to the football team that will take the field tonight to battle with our own warriors of the gridiron.

In any endeavor the Marines have the do or die spirit and the will to win that has brought them through many tight situations.

Whether in victory or defeat, their indomitable esprit de corps has always given the Devil Dogs the spirit to go on. Let us try to inject this spirit into our daily endeavors. Let's make the best of any situation, and—if we go down—let's come up fighting.

Thanks to Civic Boosters

The past week of civic celebrations is almost thanks enough for the more than one thousand civic, fraternal, and military organizations which collaborated in programming one of the biggest promotional achievements that the city has ever seen.

Information about the game and the celebrations preceding it has been spread from one end of the city to the other. To all the people who have given freely of their time and effort we wish to extend our heartiest thanks.

The whole-hearted co-operation given to Carroll in this enterprise forces us to consider the debt that we here at Carroll owe to the city of Cleveland. It is not enough for us just to say, "Thank you."

All of us must strive to realize our civic responsibilities, to take an active part in its government, and to take up our part of the labor in helping the city's unfortunate.

The people of the city of Cleveland—by their generosity and good-will—have shown us the spirit of civic co-operation. We must now do our best to follow along that way.

Prayers Open Classes

This past weekend, the John Carroll Faculty decided that all classes will be opened with a prayer.

That decision is certainly a step towards making Carroll a truly Catholic university. It always impressed us as being a bit odd that some professors did not start class with a nod in the direction of the Almighty. Perhaps it was just an over-sight, or perhaps the professors thought there was not enough time allotted them to cover all the material.

The fact remains that time spent in prayer is never wasted—even class time.

In line with this, we would like to point out that the Angelus devotion is falling off a bit—not so much in the classes, but in the hallways and in the cafeteria.

Whether we are Protestant, Catholic, or Jew, the Angelus and the prayer before class is an excellent time to pray for added strength and courage—two things that we need very badly in the world today.

Surely everyone, regardless of personal faith, will join in these devotions.

With X Misplaced Look's Red-Faced

Look Magazine was on the spot this week.

The current issue contains a story warning that the next big "fix" scandal may hit college football. The college football player in the posed camera story is shown being propositioned by a gambler.

"In order to avoid offending anyone," said a spokesman for the magazine, "we had the youth wear a sweater emblazoned with a huge X. But, Holy Cow, we forgot about Xavier!"

He said that the magazine has already received many letters from Cincinnati. The students, he said, are not pleased. Xavier, undefeated so far this season, is the Nov. 10 opponent for the John Carroll Blue Streaks.

Spider's WebNo Kicking
Around Here

By Pat Trese

A small college in West Liberty, Mo., has come up with — of all things — a drop kicker. The kid collected three points last week with a 27-yard boot. Almost as remarkable was the fact that Carroll won the Case game 7-6 on the slim margin of an extra point. We've kicked two all season.

Carroll has some tough games following tonight's test at the Stadium. Next up are Dayton and Xavier, both of whom beat the Marines. That fact alone has probably given Herb Eisele some sleepless nights. Comparative scores mean nothing — we agree — but they can sure give you a good case of nerves.

We hate to carp, but with such a hair-raising schedule staring us in the face, the Streaks will have to find a consistent system of getting those extra points. Extra points — like foul shots — win ball games.

There are four chief factors involved in a successful conversion. Let's go down the list:

The Line

The line must hold off the opposition so that no member of the opposing squad can break through and set the kicker on his posterior; because even the best placement artist becomes un-nerved at the sight of 250 pounds of raw beef charging down his throat — a sight not always conducive to accuracy.

Chances are, if the line cannot perform this task, there will seldom be an opportunity for the kicker to come into the ball game — except to punt.

The Center

The center must be able to pass back to the holder in such a way that the holder need not scramble the width of the field to retrieve the ball. Centers in single-wing formations have the edge over T-formation centers in this sort of thing. Nowadays, T-centers need only concentrate on picking the ball up quickly and not dropping it.

The Holder

The man who holds the ball must have nerves of steel, fingers of wrought iron, and a grip like a Brillo pad. He must receive the pass from center, set the ball down at the correct angle and then close his mind to the thought that the kicker might sever his hand from his wrist. This rarely happens. More often the holder is just gored by an opposing tackle.

The Kicker

The kicker — according to one school of thought — can be just anyone. No talent is necessary. All he needs is a leg with a foot on the end of it. The kicker need only swing his leg in the general direction of the goal post and — Bingo! — an extra point.

The utter simplicity of the kicking is ample explanation as to why men like Lou Groza are found constantly on the steps of the Cathedral, impoverished, and begging alms.

Anybody can kick!

Streaks Meet Quantico TonightEx-Brown
Leads Troops

Tonight's the big one!

Maxing the most tremendous promotional activity in Carroll history, the John Carroll Blue Streaks prepare to meet the invasion of the Cleveland Stadium by the highly-touted Quantico Marine gridders. The opening kickoff is at 8:15 p.m.

Carroll, seemingly manacled this season by the loss of the veterans who upset proud Syracuse last November, barely squeaked by Case Tech last Saturday. Tonight, they face one of their roughest rivals of the year.

Marines Have Edge

As last year against Syracuse, the Streaks find themselves underdogs once more. Quantico's record this season is comparable to Carroll's in mediocrity, but they have faced more rugged opposition.

Packed with former collegiate and professional luminaries, the Marine squad is coached by Capt. Bill Justice, a stand-out player from Rollins College and the brother of the All-American "Choo-Choo".

Pros Bolster Squad

Heading the Quantico roster is Weldon Humble, dangerous lineman, formerly with Rice and the Cleveland Browns. The effect of Humble upon the Carroll forward wall has been the subject of much nervous speculation for the past month.

Among the other pros on the Marine team are former Pittsburgh Steeler Art McCaffray and Jim Crawford of the Chicago Bears.

Dayton Next
on Schedule

The high-scoring Dayton Flyers will tangle with the Blue Streaks in Carroll's only Sunday game of the year, Nov. 4, at the Cleveland Stadium.

The Flyers, currently ranked with Xavier and Cincinnati as one of the top three teams in Ohio, have won all five of their games, rolling up 149 points to their opponents' 48.

Dayton defeated the Quantico Marines, 21-14; Bonaventure, 35-14; Youngstown, 27-7; Toledo, 47-7, and Chattanooga, 19-6.

Starting against Carroll in the offensive backfield will be Marine veteran Frank Siggins at quarterback, Johnny Vukelich at full, Bobby Recker and Danny O'Brien at the halves.

Streaks Boot Extra Point
Down Rough Riders, 7-6

Breaking a string of three consecutive losses, the John Carroll Blue Streaks edged Case Tech, 7-6, last Saturday night at Shaw Stadium. 6,300 fans saw the Streaks win on their second extra point scored all season.

In the first quarter John Hon of Case ran a punt to his own 49-yard line. Two plays later, quarterback Clark Street fumbled and Mario Alemagno recovered for Carroll on the Case 47.

Interference Called

After losing five yards on a pass attempt, Tony Ferrante tossed a long pass intended for Joe Minor. Pass interference was called on Hon and the ball was placed on the Case 11.

Burrell Shields, on a straight hand-off, carried the ball to the Case 5. Another plunge by Shields moved the ball to the 2 for a first down. On the next play, Paul Brubeck, freshman fullback, swept around left end for the touchdown.

Extra Point Good

George Lyman kicked the game-winning extra point. It spelled victory for the Streaks, and it was the second successful conversion by Carroll this year.

Case made its lone tally in the opening minute of the second half. Jim Theiling broke through the

"Good Duty," Says Stergiou
Stergiou's job as Drum Major isn't easy, but he says he prefers this type of duty. He not only instructs his organization in drill, but gives music lessons on drum and bugle when not making arrangements of martial music. Three of the marches he wrote are presently being used by the unit.

Sgt. Stergiou, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stergiou of Nashua, New Hampshire, studied music at Nashua High School and had private instruction on brass prior to joining the Marine Corps.

Joined Corps in 1942

He enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1942 and served in the Canal Zone for two years while continuing his studies in music. His musical education includes study of the piano, string instruments, drums and trumpet. In 1945 he was transferred to Washington, D. C., to serve with the Drum and Bugle Corps and was selected for the position of Drum Major in September, 1949.
